

COCKINGTON COURT

Court Up in Cockington

February 2015

2015 a top year for the Court

Cockington Court experienced a highly successful year in 2015 – seeing thousands of visitors at its events, exhibitions and enjoying the craft studios throughout the year.

The team has worked hard to share its beauty with local, national and international visitors, complemented by the Court's growing reputation as a Centre of Excellence for crafts.

Check out our fantastic videos on the website showing the Court's beauty.

Cockington Craft

New tenant in the Cob Barn

Philip Joyce has brought his passion in gilding to life at Cockington. These unique pieces add to the variety of crafts visitors can see being handmade. Phil has successfully developed his business since arriving here and has now taken on a second unit and more staff. Take a look in the Cob Barn to find out more.

Message from the team

The Court Team have been busy planning to bring you yet another full year of exciting events. We are introducing a few new ones such as local food markets, starting late April.

Love is in the air here at Cockington Court. We have introduced a new hearts trail for half term where families can spot over 50 hearts, many have been made especially by our amazingly talented craft makers.

Our phone lines have been hotter than ever with wedding enquiries - ladies don't forget it's a special leap year this year! Gail Trezise, one of our studio makers, has even designed 'Marry Me' tokens especially.

Don't forget there is plenty to see and do here, even on a wet day, although we are looking forward to plenty of sunshine now.

Hot off the press: we have just selected 3 more exciting high quality craft businesses to join our thriving craft community. Find out more in our next newsletter.

We hope to see you here soon.
